THE UNDERGRADUATE.

VOL. XXVI. MIDDLEBURY, VT., NOVEMBER, 1900. No. 1.

Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, D. D., LL. D.

Rev. Dr. Cyrus Hamlin, D. D., LL. D., the veteran missionary to Turkey, founder of Robert College at Harpoot and president of Middlebury College from 1880 to 1885, died suddenly in Portland, Me., August 9, at the residence of D. H. Farley. Seldom is the world of education and religion called upon to mourn so great a loss. Those who saw and met Dr. Hamlin at the Centennial Commencement last July were impressed with the interest and evident enjoyment with which he entered into all the exercises. On the days when students and alumni marched in procession from the College to the church, he dismissed the carriage which had been ordered for him with the remark that when he got too old to walk with the rest he would remain at home. The greeting given him here was most loving and hearty and the feelings toward him in the hearts of Middlebury students are of gratitude and highest esteem.

Dr. Hamlin was born in Waterford, Me., January 5, 1811. His father, Hannibal Hamlin, was a brother of Cyrus Hamlin for whom the missionary was named. Hannibal Hamlin, the vice president of the United States, was a son of the elder, and a cousin of the younger Cyrus. The father of young Cyrus died when the boy was nine months old. At a very youthful age the lad and his younger brother managed the affairs of the Hamlin farm and found very little time for schooling. At the age of 16 years Cyrus was bound out to his brother-in-law, who lived in Portland and conducted a silversmith business. It seemed as though the boy would have to learn that trade. A stirring sermon by Rev. Edward Payson turned his thoughts toward the ministry and by dint of hard study he prepared himself for Brighton academy. From there he entered Bowdoin college. His mechanical trend was brilliant and he constructed the first steam engine ever built in Maine, in his sophomore year. He was a little over 25 years when he graduated from Bowdoin. He then took a three years' course at Bangor Seminary and preached several sermons during that time at Portland and Worcester. In a year or two he had become an active preacher of the Congregational faith. At the age of 30 years he was sent to Constantinople by the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. Before he departed he was married to Miss Henrietta L. Jacobson of Dorset, Vt. The missionary field proved his life work, and forty years of that were spent in the Turkish empire. He founded a school for boys and native helpers and succeeded in maintaining it under great difficulty and through persecution. He established laundries and bake houses, and it was the latter that gained him fame during the Crimean war. The bread was supplied to the English hospitals and the sick and wounded lived and were made well on Hamlin's bread. The profits were turned over to the church building fund, and over a dozen houses of worship were erected by this means. Dr. Hamlin later became principal of Bebek Seminary, which position he held from 1840 to 1860. His next effort was the founding of Robert College at Harpoot, of which he became the head. The enterprise was a great one. It was to open the first Christian college in Turkey. Some Jesuit institutions, not equal to our ordinary American academy, had borne that name, but the objectif of Dr. Hamlin and Christopher R. Robert was an American college. The story of his efforts to raise the required $100,000 is a record of many barriers met and surmounted, one of the greatest of which was the Civil war, but as Dr. Hamlin says: "Mr. Robert was the man for the time and the work, and as difficulties increased his determination increased." So Robert College was opened in 1863. When five years had passed, the college had become very nearly self-supporting. The native pastors, teachers, translators and editors have been the choicest fruits of the institution, and their average character is the halo of its history. It may challenge later institutions to show better results. Dr. Hamlin left Turkey in 1873. His first wife died while in Turkey, and in 1859 he married Miss Mary E. Tenney, a young missionary from New Hampshire. In 1877 he was appointed professor of theology in the Bangor Theological Seminary, which position he held until inaugurated president of Middlebury College in 1880. Here he remained until 1885, when, with the College firmly established and its future secured, he tendered his resignation and retired to his home in Lexington, Mass. He was the author of a number of theological works. Concerning Dr. Hamlin's five years' administration of the affairs of Middlebury College, the "Laurea" says: "His long experience in trying and discouraging undertakings made him well fitted for his new position. With his usual energy he endeavored to bring order out chaos and started the College on a new era of prosperity. The library he found in a deplorable condition. The 12,000 volumes constituting it were crowded together in what is now the museum. Through numerous restrictions they were almost inaccessible. The geological and botanical specimens were in such crowded quarters that as aids to students they were almost useless The north end of Painter hall was unused, and President Hamlin proposed by cutting through the four floors of the building and putting in stairways and shelves to have a convenient library. This, with other improvements, President Hamlin thought would cost about $7000. This was laughed at and his plans opposed by the trustees. Many prophesied that he would involve the institution in debt; but all the improvements were made, new books to the value of $1000 were put into the library and some new apparatus into the laboratories, the gymnasium was fitted up with considerable apparatus and the stipulated sum was exceeded by only $1.50, which the worthy president paid from his own pocket."

In his address at the funeral of Dr. Hamlin, Rev. S. Lewis B. Speare, his pastor while president of Middlebury College, said in part:

"I am glad to speak of Dr. Hamlin as a parishioner. It was my privilege to know him in that relation for five years, and he was an ideal parishioner. The cares of his college presidency were numerous and pressing. He was at a time of life when many college instructors are released from duty. But almost no service of the church, on the Sabbath or during the week, was without his presence and influential participation. His helpfulness did not cease with public service.

In his administration of Middlebury College, Doctor Hamlin had a success which was a fitting climax to his conspicuous and phenomenal work as an educator. He found a mere handful of students, buildings few and needing repair, and finances embarrassed. He soon commanded means to reconstruct buildings. He was his own architect and superintendent of workmen; he planted trees and watered them with his own hands under summer skies; he repaired chemical and philosophical apparatus; equipped a working laboratory; gave the library a new and ample apartment with a card catalogue and reading room, open daily instead of once a week. In short, he so brought new life and methods that the alumni had courage to continue help. Some of them have since left large legacies, and at the centennial celebration, a few weeks since, every returning alumnus rejoiced in abundant tokens of present prosperity and an assured future. At the alumni dinner, the president of the board of trustees gave emphatic testimony to the agency which began the upward turn in the life of their alma mater.

But I have my highest joy in speaking of Mr. Hamlin as a Christian. In recounting to me his experience at the Middlebury Centennial, after gratefully mentioning the personal welcome by students, officers and citizens and the tokens of present life and future growth of the College, he spoke tenderly and with emphasis of the joy and comfort which he had from an interview with a former instructor. And last Sabbath afternoon, his last upon earth, when it was my privilege to be with him and lead in prayer at the family altar, kneeling close to his bowed head, he responded with an "amen" tender and fervent, — unmistakable evidence that the Throne of Grace had ever been the joy and strength of his life. Were there time, I would be glad to speak of the ideal ordering of Providence for our beloved friend. He was at the great Ecumenical Conference in New York and witnessed that thrilling revelation of what is now the world-wide appreciation of that work to which he gave the endeavors of his youth and the devotion of mature years. Those assembled could see him, the typical missionary pioneer. He was at the College he had done so much to save, in its Centennial celebration welcomed with cyclones of applause from grateful students and every token of appreciation from others; and then, in most beautiful coronation, he goes down to Portland, the city of his youthful consecration to his adored Saviour and Lord, shares in commemorative services in the church where he joined his Master's visible body, returns to the home of a beloved relative, and in a few moments he received the glorious translation and glad welcome in waiting for all who die in the Lord."

EDITORIAL.

WE mail a copy of THE UNDERGRADUATE to each member of the Class of 1904, hoping that you will read in the act an urgent invitation to become subscribers. A majority of college publications enter the names of the entire freshman class as subscribers and so consider them unless notified to the contrary, very properly taking it for granted that every student will be interested in this branch of college work; but we rely upon your college spirit even a step farther and are confident that each one will have interest enough to lend his support without the use of any such coersion. We venture the wager that not one student in the College fails to read every issue of the college paper. Those who do this over the shoulders of their friends, while they jingle the price in their pockets, put us in mind of that Bible story of Ananias and Sapphira, who were glad to enjoy the community of goods, but preferred not to make their goods common. The Business Manager will be glad to enter your names as subscribers at any time, preferably NOW!

THE opening of this college year is fraught with more than ordinary significance to Middlebury students. It is only after much thought and research in the annals of the College and of the world that one is able to realize, in some degree, what a century of college work can mean. The story of the development of our College is one of sturdy worth. Deprived of all assistance by the state that gave her birth, her only progress has been the outcome of individual interest. Into the very history of her first hundred years are woven the gifts of Painter and Storrs and Chipman. Now at the beginning of her second century she is made rich in equipment by the gifts of Starr and Warner and others of her grateful children. We who in this era of her greatest prosperity are privileged to take advantage of and enjoy these increasing facilities are indeed fortunate. A selfish course is to passively take and enjoy them, a more praiseworthy way is to actively appropriate them, realizing their value and reciprocating with our hearty loyalty and support. This done and the beginning of the third century will see "sons and daughters yet unborn" thronging the old campus sacred with the associations of an added century.

FOR the benefit of the new class and any others whose minds may not be clear on the subject we print the following extract from the constitution of the Undergraduate Association:

ARTICLE VII.

Competition.

SECTION 1. The editors of the UNDERGRADUATE shall be chosen upon the following basis of competition: In order to be eligible the competitor must be a member of the association at the beginning of the year and must contribute matter for at least two numbers preceding the March (or last) issue before the election.

SEC. 2. The quality and amount of matter written expressly for the UNDERGRADUATE. The quality shall be an important factor, and in question regarding this the advisory member of the faculty shall have final decision.

SEC. 3. In close competition the one having submitted matter for the most issues in the year preceding his election shall have the preference.

SEC. 4. All original matter submitted, whether printed or not, shall count equally in the competition.

Through some primordial modesty the average sophomore, junior and senior would gladly avail himself of any chance to escape appearing on chapel stage with an original production. We know of no such chance free from labor. In fact there is provided but one way of escape and that is through the editor's sanctum. There are several reasons why this is preferable to chapel oratory. Chiefest among these we would mention the fact that equal profit will accrue to the person involved, while at the same time, though they may be there in even more severe outline, yet one cannot see the scowls of disapproval and the cynical smiles that greet one's efforts. And that is indeed a comfort. So to encourage competition we print the following from the constitution:

The editor-in-chief shall be excused from any four rhetorical exercises during the year and one a term shall be canceled to the assistants.

And this applies to the young women as well as to the young men.

LITERARY.

A very interesting letter has recently come to the hands of President Brainerd. It was written in 1841 by S. H. Chaffin, then a Freshman, and we publish it below in part, thinking it will be of interest to the present generation to catch a glimpse of the feelings and experiences of a Freshman over half a century ago. The original letter is now in possession of Mrs. Chas. Randall of Manchester.

MIDDLEBURY, September 16th, 1841.

DEAR MOTHER—It is with the greatest pleasure that can be imagined that I now attempt to address a fond and tender mother. But still it is a thing which requires no little degree of attention, for who can find words to express the nearness of a mother who has been the guardian angel of my thought. My health is good as yet, and I trust the same blessing abides with you also, and may that still remain to each of us, without which we are nothing. The beautiful sun of day now rises and sends forth his gladdening beams for one at college upon whom he was wont to smile at Burr Sem. How different, vastly different, are things in college from those at B. Sem. But whether this difference is for the better or no, I can inform you better by and by. I arrived at Middlebury at half-past ten o'clock on Tuesday; had a very pleasant ride—better than what I had anticipated. I stayed one night at Rutland and breakfasted at Brandon, 16 miles from Middlebury. One of the professors of this college rode with me from Manchester to Middlebury, so that I had a fine opportunity of finding out many things relating to the college. I board with a widow woman in the same family where Taylor, Blakely, White and three other young men board. We have to pay between eight and nine shillings per week. Our boarding house is over a mile from college, which makes over six miles travel each day. I tell the students that it is all it is worth to go after our meals, and we have to pay for it besides. I have entered the Freshman class, and still remain a member of it. You may think strange of my doing so, but I think if you will consider all the circumstances in my case you will say that it was the best way for me; at least I hope so. The Sophomore class have been over four books in geometry and reviewed them so that they commence at the fifth book and finish geometry this term. If I had entered that class I should have to get all the lessons which they get and still learn four books in geometry this term, and I think it could not be done without a sacrifice of my health. I could not have maintained any standing in that class, at least for one year, if not for my whole college course. But now (if I have good health) I can be the very best scholar in my class. Now I can teach, but if in the other class I could not. A young man never has but one time to get an education, and why not get a good one as well as to slip through college and not know but little after all. The name don't make the man, but education does the business. Is it not better to be the first in the class than to be away behind the others in the Sophomore? Our class has seventeen members belonging to it, and it is quite likely there will be twenty. Some are smart fellows, and some are not so smart as they might be. Still it is the largest class there is in college. I room in the west college with a young man by the name of Sampson—not that strong man we read of in the Bible, but one similar to him. He is a good-hearted fellow and perfectly honest, so far as I know about him. He had his room all furnished with bed, chair, desk and wash-stand. I thought it was a fine chance for me who had no such things. Don't you think it was? We have three lessons per day (Saturdays and Wednesdays excepted) on which days we have only two. Our recitation in Latin comes immediately after prayers in the morning before breakfast. As soon as our recitation is finished the bell rings and then all the students go to their breakfast. We have a lesson in Bourdon's Algebra at 11 o'clock and a lesson in Greek at 4 o'clock p. m. Everything is calculated to make us fellows study like a man at mowing. The teachers seem to labor with all diligence for elevating the standing of this institution. Middlebury is a very fine place, larger than I expected. There is a great deal of business carried on here, and I think you would like it here very much. I have not been lonely any yet, and I believe I shall not be if I have my health and one thing more—money enough. Money appears to be the chief article which is called for. My expenses to Middlebury were $4.25; stage fare was $3.50. I have bought two books since I came, and shall be obliged to buy more, I expect. This college and college buildings stands upon some rising ground away from the village where it is very sightly, but cold in the winter, I should guess. There are three college buildings, two of stone and one of wood, all very large; and they intend to build another next year if they can obtain the funds. The members belonging to the Senior class room in the old college and those belonging to the other classes in the west stone building. I have just returned from a 5 o'clock meeting on the Sabbath; preaching was good, and singing, too. The meeting house is very large and beautiful, and the organ sounds fine; such music you don't find at Windhall, Hannah!

I find that my paper is quite used up, and I shall not have time to tell half the story. This in haste from your sincere and affectionate son,

S. H. CHAFFIN.

Tell Harrison he may go a coon and skunk hunting too if he wishes. But let him be cautious or he may get his clothes terribly scented, for there are many such animals out in the eastern portions of Windhall. Which fur do you think, uncle, is the finest? Find out and write to me so that I may know, as I am no dealer in furs now since I have become a member of college. There was a time, Uncle H., when I called myself a pretty good judge of furs, but that time is now gone—gone, yes, like all other foolish things which boys think of.

Mother, let me now, absent from you, charge you not to labor too hard. Do not work to make yourself sick, for that will profit you nothing at all; but a loss of health and old age brought on prematurely will be the consequence. A person has but one life to live in this world, and that is but short; it is like a shadow which disappears before the sun's rays. But it is a man's duty and right to prolong this earthly existence.

Tell Miss Mary Ann that I did entirely forget to call up and see her amidst my hurry to get away that morning. Tell her be sure and send me a paper when she has got to her school. Direct to Middlebury College. Give my respects to all who may make inquiry of me. Good night all, for the present. A poor scholar,

S. H. CHAFFIN.

AMONG THE ALUMNI.

[Contributions in the way of literary articles, reminiscences and news of former graduates are especially solicited from alumni.

In the case of a change of address, alumni are specially requested to notify the Business Manager. Much trouble has been caused in the past by failure to do this.]

'29. The Burlington Free Press of Oct. 26, prints in full the memoir of the late Daniel Roberts, of the class of 1829, read before the recent meeting of the Vermont Bar Association by his son, Robert Roberts.

'61. Ezra J. Warner of Chicago spent several days in town at the beginning of the term. The students felt no little disappointment at his non-appearance at chapel, where they might show their appreciation of his $70,000 gift in the shape of the Warner Science Hall.

'69. Henry S. Baker, principal of Humboldt High School, St. Paul, Minn., was president of the Child Study Congress held in connection with the Summer School for Teachers at the State University of Minneapolis, in August. "What Has Child Study Accomplished, and What Are the Problems of the Future?" was the subject of his presidential address.

'76. Professor Edwin H. Eastman, Principal of Marble Head High School, Marblehead, Mass., was recently a guest at President Brainerd's.

'79. "What the American college has done for church union" is the title of a valuable article in Oct. 6 number of the Sunday School Times by Rev. Henry W. Hurlbert, D.D., now of Cleveland, O.

'83. Rev. Claude M. Severance, foreign missionary and Christian journalist, has resigned the pastorate of the Second Congregational Church of Baltimore, Md., for the purpose of resuming missionary work among the Japanese in this country. Mr. Severance had been in the service of the congregation hardly a year, and would have been glad to serve longer, but felt that he was meant to continue his labors among a people in whom he had become deeply interested.

'90. Dr. E. B. Clift, who graduated last May from the Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, Philadelphia, is located at Fair Haven, Vt.

'89. The progress of Robert M. Collins, who entered the field of journalism in Washington, D. C., has been watched with interest by his numerous friends. A year ago in March he was taken from London parliamentary reporting and assigned to the management of the Associated Press corps in the Philippines. How well he did his work there, from a newspaper standpoint, is illustrated by the "scoop" he made of the most important news of the campaign — the death of General Lawton. Now we learn that he is in the thick of the fight in China. The Washington Post has the following to say of his latest achievement: "Monday morning, July 16, the Associated Press dispatch from China told of the fighting of the allied forces before the walls of Tien Tsin on the previous day. The people of the United States, not even then realizing the full horror of the stories from Pekin, were ill-prepared for the additional details of a disaster, or the news that the gallant Ninth, with Col. Liscum at their head, had been cut to pieces and their leader killed by the fanatic hordes, whose nameless deeds, under the wrecked walls of the legations in Pekin, still held civilization paralyzed with horror. The story from Tien Tsin was short, but it was vivid and accurate, for it was told by a correspondent who himself had left the field only a few hours before the dispatch was read in print by millions of Americans. The account — not more than 300 words of cable, succinct in detail — was copyrighted by the Associated Press, for in newspaper parlance it was a "scoop" of the first water. The story of the disaster before Tien-Tsin, fresh from the field, was sent in by Robert M. Collins — Bobby Collins, as newspaper men know him — the representative in China of the Associated Press, who began his brilliant newspaper career on the Washington Post. Collins has not in this instance secured his first scoop or made his personality felt for the first time at a crisis. It was Robert M. Collins who, less than a year ago, accompanied the gallant General Lawton on his last ride. He was with Lawton, where that good soldier ever loved to be — upon the firing line — when the general fell, and it was Collins who rode back to the base, worn with fasting and hard work, and cabled to the Associated Press exclusively the sad news, which, through that agency, was first spread broadcast throughout a sorrowing nation and the world."

'92. Dr. B. D. Colby, formerly practicing medicine at Whiting, has after further study in New York city entered on practice at Bristol, making treatment of the eye and throat a specialty.

'93. T. H. Noonan, Secretary of the Vermonters' Club in Buffalo, visited the State Legislature, October 10, in the interest of the Pan-American Exposition. He spent a part of Thursday at the College.

'94. Dr. Stanton S. Eddy has returned to New York, where he will continue his studies for a term in one of the New York hospitals before entering upon active medical practice.

OBITUARY.

SAMUAL EMMONS BURNHAM, '58.

The death of Samuel Emmons Burnham occurred September 22, 1900, at his home in Rutland.

He was the son of William and Mary Burnham and was born March 31, 1840, in Manchester, Vt. Here he prepared for college at Burr and Burton seminary and entered Middlebury in the year 1854. At his graduation in 1858 he received the degree of A. B., and three years later that of A. M. After graduation he taught school and studied law until the Civil war broke out in '61, when he entered the army and served for two years, being then honorably discharged in 1863. He was a member of Company E, 5th Regiment Volunteer Infantry, and held successively the positions of Second Lieutenant, First Lieutenant and Captain. During the years 1867-68 he held the position of Secretary of Civil and Military Affairs. In 1866 he was married to Miss Annie Hopkins. His first wife died in 1871, and in 1875 he was married to Miss Witta Groneweg, by whom he had two children, Frederick H. and Mary Dorothea. Mr. Burnham is survived by his brother, Joseph W. Búrnham of the class of '64, who is in mercantile business in Opechee, Mich.

REV. LYMAN H. BLAKE, '63.

Rev. Lyman H. Blake was born in Cornwall, Vt., July 19, 1840. After a boyhood spent on the farm, like a good many other Cornwall boys of those days, he was seized with the desire to have a liberal education. He was fitted for college at Burr and Burton Seminary, Manchester, Vt., and graduated from Middlebury in the class of '63. He immediately entered Andover Theological Seminary. After two years he remained out for a year, during which time he preached at Guildhall, Vt. So acceptable were his services that an effort was made to have him settle at once. But his heart was set on the full seminary course, and he returned to Andover for his third year, graduating in 1867. He was ordained November 14 of that year at River Point, R. I., where he remained two years. Rev. Dr. Labaree, who had been his college president, preached his ordination sermon. Later he was settled at Rowley, Mass., 1869-74; Methuen, Mass., 1874-77; Emmanuel church, Roxbury, Mass., 1877-81; Westfield, Mass., 1881-99 — eighteen years; Essex, Mass., 1899-1900. His great work was done in Westfield. He was widely known in the churches of Massachusetts, in which state thirty-one of his thirty-three years of service were spent. He was regarded as a preacher of rare power, and as a pastor he had no superiors. Wherever he was pastor he left the impress of his sterling manhood. His final sickness began in the early summer of 1900, and after several months of lingering illness he passed away October 12, aged 60 years and 3 months. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." His first wife was a lineal descendant of the famous Mather of Colonial days. A wife, three daughters and a son remain to mourn his loss. Such deaths make the world seem lonesome.

FOOT BALL.

Affairs of the gridiron look brighter for Middlebury this fall than has been the case for several years. Through the untiring efforts of Captain Drake and Manager Carr, backed by the hearty support and co-operation of the fellows, a team has been developed that promises much before the season closes. Carl Moore, Williams' quarter-back last year, has done exceptionally good service as coach. Much thanks is due to men from the high school and town who have helped make up the scrub team and so given 'Varsity much better practice than would otherwise have been possible.

MIDDLEBURY, 34; TOWN, 0.

The first game of the season was played with a town team, Saturday afternoon, October 6, in two fifteen-minute halves, in which the latter were defeated by a score of 34 to 0. The game was well contested, although the town team had practiced together only a few times. The village team won the toss and kicked off. The College men took the ball steadily up the field by straight line bucking, and Wilds was pushed over the line for the first touchdown in eight minutes. After this the town team gradually weakened. After the next kick off the ball was rushed up the field and finally carried over for the second touchdown by Wilds. The last touchdown in this half was made by Drake, who carried the ball around right end, making a pretty run of nearly half the length of the field. At the end of the half the score stood 18 to 0, all the goals being kicked by Wilds. In the second half the town team got the ball on the kick off, but was forced to give it up on downs. Drake then took the ball through right tackle for a twenty-five yard run, making a touchdown. The goal was kicked by Wilds. Good gains by Wilds and Barrett brought the ball within scoring distance, and Drake went over for a touchdown from the ten-yard line. Captain Drake retired from the game at this point, Wilcox taking his place. The town team kicked off again, and the ball was soon being carried toward the goal line by Barrett and Wilcox, the former finally going over for the last touchdown of the game. Wilds failed to kick the last two goals, making the score for the last half 16 and the total 34 for the game. The town team was never within scoring distance, but at times braced up and made some good gains through the line. The line-up of the two teams was as follows:

COLLEGE.		MIDDLEBURY.
Stubbs	left tackle	Collins
Wilson	centre	Mulligan
Lawrence	right guard	Burke
Skeels	right tackle	Hunt
Bailey	right end	Rochford
Bond	quarter back	Hughes, Capt.
Barrett	right half back	Estey
Wilds	full back	Yott → Youtt.

Substitutes: Wilcox and Perkins for Clark, Mellen for Bailey, Wilcox for Drake, Beau for Estey. Touchdowns—Wilds, 2; Drake, 3; Barrett, 1. Goals kicked—Wilds, 4. Time—Fifteen-minute halves. Referee — Monroe. Umpire — Cushman. Timekeeper—Carr, 1904. Linesmen—Eveleth, 1904, and Crowell, 1904.

MIDDLEBURY, 31; T. C. A., 5.

The second game was played on the athletic grounds Saturday, October 13, in which Troy Conference team of Poultney was defeated with a score of 31 to 5 in two twenty-minute halves. The College team played rather listlessly after the first few minutes of the game, while the academy team put in lots of vim. The tables were turned, however, in the second half, and the dash which the Middlebury eleven put into the game swept the Poultney team off its feet. The fierce rushes of Drake, Wilds and Skeels carried the ball over the opponents' line four times. Neither team was in good condition, so that time was frequently taken out. The game was clean and free from slugging. The College eleven won the toss and kicked off, getting the ball on a fumble. Wilds went through the line for thirty yards, making the first touchdown in two minutes. No goal was kicked. The Academy kicked to Middlebury's fifteen yard line, where they obtained the ball on a forward pass. Turner dropped back and kicked the ball directly between the goal posts, making the score 5 to 5. Wilds kicked from Middlebury's 25-yard line to T. C. A.'s 30-yard line, and the ball was fumbled. Here Drake, Barrett and Wilds were sent into the line for short gains, taking the ball up to the 2-yard line, where it was lost to Poultney on a fumble. Turner attempted to kick out from behind the line, but Drake broke through, forcing him to make a safety. Score, 7 to 5.

The Academy kicked off from their 25-yard line to Middlebury's 30-yard line. From here the ball was carried up the field by short gains. Poultney took a brace and forced Wilds to punt. It was Poultney's ball on their 7-yard line. After several short gains Turner went around right end for fifty yards on a double pass. A moment later Hall went around the opposite end for ten yards on the same play. Poultney fumbled but retained the ball and punted to the 10-yard line on the next down. Middlebury carried the ball out on short dashes by Drake and Wilds. Here the ball was fumbled and went to the Academy team. Turner again attempted to drop-kick a goal, but failed Time was called before the ball was again put into play.

In the second half Wilcox took Barrett's place at left half. Poultney kicked off to Drake, who ran back ten yards before he was downed. Wilcox made three yards through right tackle. On the next play Drake was sent around left end for fifteen yards. After a few short gains through the centre Skeels went through right tackle for ten yards. Stubbs, Wilds and Wilcox carried the ball steadily toward the goal line and Drake was shoved over for the first touchdown of the half. Wilds kicked a difficult goal, making the score 13 to 5.

Wilds ran Poultney's next kick-off back fifteen yards before he was downed. Skeels made eight yards through left tackle and Stubbs went through right tackle for fifteen yards more. Drake, Wilds and Wilcox each made ten yards, and then the ball went to T. C. A. on a fumble. On the second down the Poultney team was thrown for a loss of ten yards and punted to Hughes, who ran back ten yards. Hughes made ten yards on a double pass and Drake went to left tackle for twenty yards. Wilcox went through right tackle for ten yards. Drake made the second touchdown on a twenty-yard run around left tackle. Wilds kicked a pretty goal at a difficult angle.

T. C. A. kicked off to Wilds, who brought the ball back thirty yards before being stopped. Drake made two more fifteen-yard runs through right tackle. The ball was here lost to Poultney on downs through a misunderstanding of the signals. Turner punted to Hughes, who ran fifteen yards before being thrown. After a fifteen-yard run by Skeels and several short plunges by Drake and Wilds, Stubbs was sent over for the third touchdown. Wilds kicked an easy goal. Score, 25 to 5.

Skeels ran the next kick-off back fifteen yards. Again the ball was carried up the field and across the line by line plunges, the only features being long end runs by Drake and Skeels. Wilds kicked the goal, making the score for the half 24 to 5, and for the game 31 to 5.

The teams lined up as follows:

MIDDLEBURY, 5; NORWICH UNIVERSITY, 5.

The Middlebury College eleven and the strong Norwich team played each other to a standstill Saturday, Oct. 13, the score being 5 to 5 in one 15-minute half and one 12-minute half. The game was fierce and fast, and it was anybody's game until the whistle blew for the last down. Norwich excelled greatly in team play, while Middlebury relied on individual effort. The features of the game were the line bucking of Capt. Drake and the tackling of Stearns and Skeels.

Norwich kicked off to Middlebury's 15 yard line. The college eleven rushed the ball back to the middle of the field before Norwich held for downs. Middlebury soon regained the ball, but it was lost a moment later on a fumble. Tuck then took the ball through right tackle for the only touchdown of the half. The goal was missed. Time was called with the ball in the middle of the field.

In the second half Middlebury kicked off to Norwich's five-yard line, where they obtained the ball on a fumble. The university team held for downs and were soon rushing the ball up the field. Middlebury regained the ball on the 15-yard line and rushed it back to the 5-yard line. Here Norwich held again, but Middlebury had the ball on downs a moment later and Drake was shoved over for a touchdown. Wilds failed to kick the goal.

UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT, 31; MIDDLEBURY, 6.

The game for which Middlebury had long feared and trembled proved another instance of a bridge needlessly crossed before it was come to. After U. V. M. held Dartmouth from scoring the Saturday before, the feeling was general that to hold them down to as small a score as last year would be highly satisfactory. When Drake made his touchdown and tied the score in the first half the team were well nigh worshipped by the enthusiastic crowd. The final score was perfectly satisfactory when it is taken into account that the quarterback who was practiced with the team could not play in the game, and that both ends, Clark and Stearns, had been on the field but three or four times this season.

After a few minutes in the second half the superior weight of the Burlington team began to tell on 'Varsity and then the scoring began, chiefly on the left end, around which the ball was carried for touchdowns four times. The University team used the Pennsylvania guards back formation, while the Middlebury team repeatedly gained its distance on straight football. A large delegation of fellows came down from Burlington and vied with the local rooters during the game.

Middlebury kicked out of bounds twice and then Vermont kicked off over the goal line, scoring a safety. Middlebury kicked off again and Burlington punted. Here the ball went to the university team on downs. Vermont then tried a quarterback kick and had the ball down on the 15 yard line. The pigskin was carried up to the two-yard line by straight line bucking and here Middlebury took a grand brace, holding for downs. Wilds punted up the field, but Vermont was soon rushing the ball down toward the goal line, and Strait was pushed over for the first touchdown. Hutchinson kicked the goal, ending the scoring of the university team this half. Middlebury kicked off to the 15-yard line and secured the ball on a fumble. A moment later Capt. Drake went around the right end for a touchdown. Wilds kicked the goal. The half ended soon after the next kick-off with the ball in Burlington's territory in possession of the college team. Score, 6 to 6.

During the second half Vermont made four touchdowns. Most of the plays were directed against Clark at left end. He was badly used up and could not stop the terrific plunges of the heavy guards. Wilds, Hughes and Skeels were injured, but pluckily continued throughout the game. Patterson, Hutchinson and Strait made pretty end runs in this half, each scoring a touchdown. Hutchinson kicked three of the goals The score for this half was 23 to 0, and of the game 31 to 6.

The University men were off side and held repeatedly throughout the game, but the officials failed to penalize in most cases. For Middlebury, Capt. Drake played by far the best game. His line bucking and end running was by far the best seen on the field. Among the other features was the hard tackling of Stearns and Hughes. Wilds, Wilcox, Skeels and Stubbs also made good gains. For Vermont, Capt. Morse, Hutchinson and Patterson played a fast game.

The line-up :

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES.

On Sunday afternoon, September 31, Professor Sanford addressed the young women of the College at the first devotional meeting of the year. He spoke on the importance of organized Christian work in College, showing that the Associations represent the religious life of the College and offer opportunities for real Christian work

The members of the Association gave a tea September 30 in the Phrontisterion to the women of the freshman class.

One missionary meeting has been held. Miss Chapin, a missionary from China, gave a very interesting address.

At the meeting on October 17 fourteen new members were received into the Association, including all the freshman women except two.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The joint reception of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. was held in the Phrontisterion on the evening of Friday, September 28. Music was furnished during the evening by the two glee clubs and a ladies' quartette. A large number of students and the faculty were present and a beginning was made toward becoming acquainted with the new class.

Mr. Boyd Edwards, Williams, 1900, a traveling secretary in Association work, spoke in the College chapel Sunday afternoon, October 7.

The Y. M. C. A. have added as new members Messrs. Hammersley, Slochum, Dale, Eddy, Hovey, Gooding, Wilson, Simonds, Sunderland and Hooker as active members; Joselyn and Lind as associate members.

Instead of pursuing the courses of Bible study laid down by the committee, it has been thought best that the young men attend the Bible classes conducted by Professors Sanford and Wright at the Methodist and Congregational Churches, respectively.

AMONG THE FRATERNITIES.

INITIATIONS.

Alpha Alpha of Delta Kappa Epsilon have not yet initiated, but have the following pledged men: Stanley F. Bond, Leslie E. Sunderland, Philip E. Mellen, Richard H. Warner and Edwin W. Wilcox.

The annual initiation of Alpha Mu of Chi Psi was held on the evening of October 17. The new initiates, all of the class of 1904, are the following: LeRoy Farley Hovey, East Orange, N. J.; Samuel Chester Eveleth, Marblehead, Mass; Charles M. Crowell, Marblehead, Mass.; Harry Foster Markolf, West Rutland, Vt.; David Clark Simonds, Manchester, Vt.; Allen Merritt Barrett, Manchester, Vt. Beside local alumni there were present L. Russell, '97; Loren Redfield, '87, and E. H. Eastman, '76.

The annual initiation and banquet of Delta Upsilon occurred Friday evening, October 12. After the initiation held in the chapter's rooms the company went to the Addison House, where a banquet was served. The initiates were Nelson C. Dale, Claude F. Lester and D. Ashley Hooker of the class of 1903; William H. Hammersley, Hugh G. Lynde, Carl A. Perkins, Roy M. Reed, and George R. Wilson of the class of 1904. Of alumni there were present Rev. H. L. Bailey, '86; J. B. Donoway, '93; E. M. Roscoe, '96; J. A. Lobban, '98; W. H. Botsford, '98; C. C. Bailey, ex-'98; H. F. Lake, '99; F. W. Cady, '99; O. R. Houghton, ex-'00, most of whom stayed over to attend the football game Saturday afternoon.

Friday evening, October 26, the Alpha Chi Fraternity initiated the following women of the Freshman class: Alice B Brainerd, Helen L. Brainerd, Florence L. Bemis, Mary W. Hager, L. Mabel Merrill, Fannie L. Milliken, Maud M. Tucker, Mabel Witmer.

Wednesday evening, October 3, Vermont Alpha of Pi Beta Phi initiated to membership the following women of the entering class: Elna A. Coates, M. Katherine Collins, Clara M. Marden, Florence E. Perley, Jessie M. Prentis, Josie M. Prentis, Helen L. Read. Miss Elsie Bradford, grand president of the National Fraternity, was present at the initiation.

DELTA UPSILON CONVENTION.

The sixty-sixth annual convention of the Delta Upsilon fraternity was held with the Syracuse chapter at Syracuse, N. Y., October 17–20. Two hundred and twenty-five delegates were present, every one of the thirty-four chapters being represented, men coming from California and Canada. The delegates were entertained at "The Yates," the audience room of which was given over to the business sessions of the convention. Judge Elisha B. Sherman, Middlebury, '60, who has been for the past seven years president of the fraternity, was unable to be present owing to a severe cold, which has for some time kept him confined to his home. A charter was granted to a petitioning society from Chicago University.

The delegates from Middlebury Chapter were F. J. Bailey, '01; B. L. Stafford, '01, and F. A. Simmons, '02.

THE SEXTETTE.

The Middlebury College Sextette, consisting of Barnard and Botsford, '00, Barnard and Clark, '01, Simmons and Voetsch, '02, passed a very pleasant three weeks giving concerts at summer resorts during the early part of the vacation. For the first week they made their headquarters at Middlebury and drove out each day to where they were to sing. These first five concerts were at Ferrisburg, Mountain Spring Hotel, Bread Loaf Inn, Lake Dunmore House and Hyde Manor. The members spent the first Sunday at different places, coming together at Rutland Monday and going to Manchester for the first concert of the week. Next morning they drove to Dorset and after the concert were entertained at the club house of the Dorset Field Club. Wednesday morning they went by carriage to Lake St. Catherine, where two days were spent and a concert given each evening. One of the pleasantest drives was from here to Middletown Springs, where the Sextette was welcomed by Rev. H. L. Bailey, '86, and entertained after the concert, by special invitation, at Mont Vert Hotel. Saturday morning a very pleasant drive landed the combination at the home of B. L. Stafford, '01, of Tinmouth, where Sunday was spent in rest and quiet. During these first two weeks something like two hundred miles were traveled by carriage. On Monday they began a week upon Lake George, beginning at Caldwell and singing at Crosbyside, The Marion, Sagamore and Catskill House. Owing to business duties which called Botsford home, the Club were obliged to disband just as the best part of the season was coming on; but one would have to look a long way to find six fellows who passed a pleasanter vacation, or one filled so full of varied experiences.

CLASS OF 1900.

Allen is at the head of the Greek department of Black Hall School, Black Hall, Ct. He also teaches part of the English classes.

Barnard is at present bookkeeper for a grocery firm at Granville, N. Y., where he will remain for the winter and pursue further studies at home.

LOCALS.

W. A. Janes, ex-'00, of St. Albans has entered the Senior class.

Glenn W. White, '01, has been appointed chapel organist for the year.

Miss Weld, '01, and Miss Kelsey, '03, spent the summer at Bread Loaf Inn.

Miss Curtiss, '00, has been spending a week at Mrs. Avery's and visiting friends at the College.

The Freshman and Sophomore delegations of Alpha Chi gave a reception at their rooms Wednesday evening, October 17.

Miss Avery, '01, has been detained from College work for several weeks by a run of typhoid fever. She is again on the road to recovery.

The Delta Upsilon underclassmen entertained the Freshman and Sophomore ladies of Alpha Chi at D. U. Hall Thursday evening, October 25.

THE UNDERGRADUATE.

President Brainerd was present at the inauguration of Dr. Henry S. Pritchett to the presidency of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Wednesday, October 24.

Bryant, '00, Stearns, '01, Lawrence, '01, White, '01, and Drake, '02, spent the summer at Lake Dunmore House, and report a pleasant and successful vacation.

J. I. Newton, '03, was unfortunate enough at his first foot ball practice to be carried to his room with a broken ankle. He is now able to get about with the aid of canes.

On Thursday evening, October 25, Delta Kappa Epsilon was entertained at whist by Pi Beta Phi at the Pharetra. The latter have also issued invitations to Chi Psi and Delta Upsilon for a Hallowe'en party, October 31.

In August J. Earle Parker, our worthy business manager, was operated upon for appendicitis at the Proctor Hospital. He has not yet been able to resume his College work, but hopes to return about November 1.

In anniversary of the five hundredth year since the death of Chaucer, Dr. Tupper, head of the English department at the University of Vermont, spoke in the College chapel to a large and well-pleased gathering on Wednesday evening, October 24.

The building of the new Science Hall is watched with eager interest. At present writing the masonry is complete nearly to the roof, with the exception of the entrance. The reality exceeds the expectations of even the donor, Ezra J. Warner, who expressed himself as more than satisfied with the plans.

Lem Brown, '01, is able to be out again after a run of typhoid which lasted from 1 o'clock until supper time of the same day. His blood was analyzed at Burlington, but instead of finding any indication of the presence of typhus bacilli they found a large number of bacilli known to science as somniculosus.

On Friday evening, October 19, Professor Sanford gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on Pompeii, illustrated with a stereopticon. The proceeds go to help pay for the new foot ball suits. It is hoped that another lecture can be arranged soon and it should be equally well supported by the students.

The Senior class have elected the following officers: Bert L. Stafford, president; Miss Mildred A. Weld, vice president; Miss Alice W. Brooks, secretary; J. Earle Parker, treasurer. The following class-day appointments were made: Ellsworth C. Lawrence, orator; Lemuel R. Brown, ivy orator; Miss Nellie M. Hadley, historian; Miss L. Berniece Thomas, prophetess; Walter M. Barnard, poet; Allan H. Nelson, presentations.

While the Sophomores were holding a class meeting in the Biological lecture room early in the term the Freshmen gained entrance by a back window and, after a fierce tussle, during which seats and clothing were considerably torn up, were ejected through the front door. The disturbed session then adjourned to an upper room and proceeded to elect the following officers: Albert E. Taylor, president; Miss Margaret Mathison, vice president; Miss Carrie M. Burditt, secretary and treasurer.
